Course description:

This course focuses on understanding elements of the Arab culture. The course will focus on topics like Arab values, women and men, religion, language, and many other topics. You are encouraged to give examples from your own experience interacting with Arabs or your own culture. You are highly encouraged not to try to understand Arab values and traditions through your own cultural lens, but instead in the context of the target culture. This helps you make sense of certain values and traditions that might seem strange or foreign to you. We might discuss some controversial topics, and you might not agree with each other on specific points. However, we need to be able to listen to each other and respect our different opinions. You should approach this course as a learning journey where we all learn from each other.

Course learning outcomes:

1. Understanding the cultural significance of the countries of the Arab world.
2. Gaining informational literacy about the principal ethnicities, minority groups, and religions of the Arab world.
3. Analyzing films and visual arts, literature, traditional music, important writers and singers, and contemporary pop music of the Arab world.
4. Developing intercultural competence about the history of Islam, and the importance of classical Arabic and the Qur'an to Muslims of the world.
5. Understanding the ethical implications of and developing ethical reasoning skills regarding modern Arab history, particularly the 2011 uprisings known as the Arab Spring, followed by the tragic civil war in Syria.

6. Analyzing current issues and challenges facing Arab culture and society, such as economic development, political instability, and human rights.
7. Enhancing cross-cultural communication and understanding skills, including the ability to appreciate and respect the perspectives and values of other cultures.
